

From: eXWorld Internet News
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 11/16/01 11:42am
Subject: microsoft is getting off easy...

I don't know what happened, but the DOJ has sold us all out. Once this settlement passes, we are all screwed. Microsoft is simply too big, too powerful and has no problem with continuing to abuse its monopoly over others. Unless you break up the company, no punishment will be effective enough.

Microsoft is too big... it can get into any industry at any time. No one can stop them because they have funds to absorb years of losses if necessary, in order to kill or take over competition. Xbox is a classic example of this. Only Microsoft would have the balls to enter the video game market at such a late stage, and take on power house companies like Sony and Nintendo. Why do you think Sega left the market? They had no chance knowing Microsoft was coming.

Something needs to be done about this company.

--

Visit eXWorld (R) Internet News
<http://www.exworld.org>